

CMBS Delinquencies Low, But Ailing Retailers Could Present Trouble

Bisnow – Dees Stribling

July 10, 2018

CMBS delinquencies were low at the end of Q2 compared to the same time last year, despite the ailing retail sector.

Delinquency levels in the market — defined as loans with past due payments of at least 60 days, foreclosures and REOs — will likely remain that way for the rest of 2018, though it is also possible that troubled retailers might unsettle the CMBS market later in the year.

To read the full article, please click the link below:

CMBS Delinquencies Low, But Ailing Retailers Could Present Trouble