

The End Is Here For 3 Philly-Area Penneys On Monday

Philadelphia Inquirer – Suzette Parmley

July 28, 2017

James Traber's shopping options are shrinking and that will only deepen Monday, when three Philadelphia-area JCPenney stores close for good.

"It's sad. I've come here for years," Traber said this week at the Penneys at Philadelphia Mills in the Northeast. "All the Kmart's in the area closed; all the Sears are closing; and now all the JCPenneys are closing.

"I'm running out of places to shop," said the engineer, 41. "It seems the only thing that's going to be left open is the Walmart."
