

More Perspective on the Housing Market Shift

Realty Biz News – Brian Kline

Nov. 8, 2018

I've been writing about changes evolving in the housing market for several months. Recently, Morningstar Credit Ratings' take away from the SFIG Residential Mortgage Finance Symposium was a very similar perspective of where the market is currently at and most likely headed. There are a lot of moving parts to take into consideration including midterm elections, trade wars, tariffs, rising interest rates, overwhelming student debt, and volatility in the stock market with a downward trend. The only certainties are uncertainty and that the market is evolving.

To read the full article, please click the link below:

More Perspective on the Housing Market Shift